The main motive of this program is to guide and channelize the potential in the sprouting ideas amongst IIT students and materialize their ideas into startups. In order to do so, a full fledged 5-week program has been carefully designed that touches on all the essential steps that are required before an idea can transform into a presentable startup.

The 5 sprints include interactions with faculty, experts from specific fields, follow up sessions and much more. The only pre-requirement is a reasonable idea which can be built on. The following few pages will walk you through the entire program and the outcomes expected at each stage. So gear up for this exciting journey!

Having an elaborate discussion with a veteran in one's field of interest can boost the enthusiasm to delve into the idea and work on making it succeed. Mentors will share their valuable suggestions to these basic start-up ideas and give an overview about what the future prospects for the start-up are. Start-up aid will also arrange one on one discussions between students and mentors which may be through voice or video calls depending on the availability and comfort of the students and mentors involved.
