Over the years the number of high-rise buildings are increasing in the built environment. Besides many disasters, fire safety takes an important role because there were many fire accidents that occurred in highrise buildings leading to huge life-loss and irrecoverable property loss. Most of these accidents were caused due to negligence and non-adherence to fire safety standards laid down in the National Building Code. The talk will give detailed insights on fire safety in the context of the highrise buildings by highlighting the important provisions from the National Building Code of India.
